Insurgents Demand Checks.

Torreon, Mexico, April 15.—By Mail.—Insurgents treated the Americans in charge of the Tejano mine with the utmost brutality. Demanding a personal check for $1000 from William Drew, the superintendent and being refused, they plundered the back of the superintendent and his brother James, assistant superintendent, with their guns and beat them until their clothing was torn from their bodies. Edward Drew, superintendent at El Cobre mine, another property of the diggers, was treated in the same manner. Although released from the company but remain finishing up their work. The rebels released the Drew brothers of their money, arms and watches.

His wife, bearing her baby in her arms, pleaded for his life, and this added to the entreaties of a friend of Gonzales, who was one of the subjects in the rebel ranks, gave the condemned merciful his freedom.

The train from Chihuahua, which had tied up north of Santa Rosalia, was released by the repassing of several diligencias and arrived here at 12 o'clock yesterday afternoon, leaving 8 minutes later for the south.
